ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Author • Teacher • Christian Ministry Resource Developer

Emmanuel Sakala writes and develops biblical teaching resources designed to encourage believers to grow in prayer, discernment, spiritual maturity and faithful service to Jesus Christ.

His teaching emphasis in this book is not fear of spiritual opposition, but confidence in God, disciplined prayer, biblical discernment, obedience and perseverance.

The central message is simple: believers should not surrender their faith merely because a season contains resistance. They should return to God, examine their ways, stand on Scripture, seek wise counsel, take responsible action and persevere in obedience.

This book is written as a practical teaching resource for personal devotion, church teaching, prayer meetings, Bible study groups and Christian leadership development.

UNDERSTANDING RESISTANCE

There are seasons when a person can honestly say: "I have prayed. I have believed. I have obeyed. Why am I still facing resistance?"

The existence of resistance does not automatically mean that God has rejected you. Scripture shows that faithful people sometimes experienced opposition while walking in obedience.

Daniel 10 gives one of the clearest biblical pictures. Daniel sought understanding from God, and the heavenly messenger later told him that his words had been heard from the first day. Yet a spiritual conflict was connected with the delay of the messenger.

The lesson is important: what you see on earth is not always the complete explanation of what is happening spiritually.

At the same time, believers must avoid unhealthy speculation. The Bible gives us confidence without teaching us to blame every inconvenience on invisible forces. Spiritual maturity combines faith with wisdom, prayer with responsibility, and discernment with humility.

When resistance appears, ask three questions: What has God actually said? What is Scripture requiring me to do? What part of this situation is within my responsibility? These questions help us remain spiritually grounded.

WHEN HEAVEN HAS HEARD YOU

Daniel 10:12 says that from the first day Daniel set his heart to understand and humbled himself before God, his words were heard.

This means Daniel's visible circumstances did not determine whether God had heard him. Heaven had already responded before Daniel received the explanation.

Many believers measure God's attention by immediate results. If the door opens, they feel heard. If the answer is delayed, they assume God is silent. Daniel teaches another pattern: faith trusts God's character even while waiting for manifestation.

There is a difference between hearing and seeing. You may pray today and see the result later. You may sow today and harvest in another season. You may obey today and understand the significance of that obedience years later.

Isaiah 55:8–9 reminds us that God's thoughts and ways are higher than ours. Therefore, waiting should not become a season of accusation against God.

Prayer during delay is not wasted prayer. Waiting can develop endurance, clarify motives, strengthen character and teach us to depend upon God rather than upon circumstances.

WHAT ARE RESISTING FORCES?

A resisting force is anything that hinders, delays, opposes or frustrates the proper progress of a God-honouring purpose.

Resistance can have different sources. It may be spiritual opposition, human opposition, fear, discouragement, temptation, unhealthy relationships, poor decisions, disobedience, unjust systems or difficult circumstances.

Ephesians 6:12 teaches that there is a spiritual dimension to the believer's struggle. Yet Scripture also contains many examples where ordinary human decisions, conflicts and consequences mattered.

Therefore, discernment is essential. Do not create a spiritual explanation where a practical explanation is sufficient. If you failed to prepare, prepare. If you need to apologize, apologize. If you need counsel, seek counsel. If you need to change a destructive habit, take responsibility.

Spiritual warfare is not an excuse for avoiding responsibility.

The mature believer asks God for wisdom to identify the source of resistance and the correct response. Sometimes the answer is prayer. Sometimes it is repentance. Sometimes it is patience. Sometimes it is a difficult conversation. Sometimes it is simply continuing faithfully.

THE SPIRITUAL DIMENSION

Ephesians 6:12 declares that our struggle is not merely against flesh and blood. Paul identifies principalities, powers, rulers of darkness and spiritual wickedness.

This does not mean believers should become obsessed with demons. The focus of Scripture is not fear of darkness but confidence in God.

Daniel 10 provides a biblical example of spiritual conflict associated with earthly kingdoms. Paul also wrote in 1 Thessalonians 2:18 that he desired to visit the believers but said Satan hindered him.

These passages show that Scripture takes spiritual opposition seriously. However, the believer's posture is never panic. Christ is Lord.

Colossians 2:15 presents Christ as victorious over hostile spiritual powers. The Christian therefore fights from a position of faith in Christ, not from terror.

Spiritual warfare should produce deeper prayer, greater holiness, stronger dependence on Scripture and increased love—not paranoia, suspicion or constant accusations against people.

The goal is not merely to identify an enemy. The goal is to remain faithful to God.

NOT EVERY PROBLEM IS A DEMON

One of the most important lessons in spiritual maturity is learning not to blame every problem on demonic activity.

A person can experience consequences because of poor financial decisions. A ministry can struggle because of inadequate organization. A relationship can break because of unforgiveness. A student can fail because they did not study. A project can collapse because preparation was neglected.

Calling every problem spiritual warfare can prevent honest self-examination.

Lamentations 3:40 gives a valuable principle: "Let us search and try our ways, and turn again to the LORD."

When resistance comes, examine your ways. Is there disobedience? Is there wisdom you have ignored? Is there a relationship requiring reconciliation? Is there a practical step you have delayed?

Then pray. Ask God to reveal what you cannot see.

Discernment does not minimize the spiritual realm; it protects you from confusion. A discerning believer can say both, "I need to pray," and, "I need to take responsibility."

The healthiest spiritual warfare is grounded in truth.

SATAN'S STRATEGY TO HINDER PURPOSE

Scripture describes Satan as an adversary. In 1 Thessalonians 2:18, Paul said Satan hindered his plans to visit the Thessalonians.

The enemy's opposition is often aimed at purpose, faith, obedience and witness. If he can make a believer quit, become bitter, become distracted or compromise their convictions, the damage can be significant.

Yet Satan is not equal to God. Job 42:2 declares that God's purposes cannot ultimately be thwarted.

The enemy may oppose, but he is not sovereign. He may tempt, but he cannot force obedience. He may accuse, but Christ is our advocate. He may create pressure, but God's grace remains sufficient.

Therefore, do not give the enemy more attention than he deserves. Give God the greater attention.

When opposition increases, return to Scripture. Return to prayer. Return to obedience. Return to fellowship with mature believers. Refuse to build your theology around fear.

God's purpose is stronger than the resistance against it.

RESISTANCE DOES NOT MEAN QUIT

Galatians 6:9 tells believers not to become weary in doing good, because in due season there will be a harvest if they do not faint.

The phrase “due season” teaches us that timing matters. A seed does not become a harvest immediately.

Many people abandon their assignment at the point where perseverance is most needed. They interpret difficulty as a sign that they chose the wrong path. Sometimes that interpretation is correct; sometimes it is not. That is why discernment is necessary.

If God has genuinely directed you, resistance should drive you deeper into Him rather than away from Him.

James 1:12 describes blessing connected with endurance under trial. Endurance is not passive suffering. It is faithful continuation under pressure.

Do not confuse stubbornness with perseverance. Perseverance remains obedient to God while remaining teachable. Stubbornness refuses correction.

Ask: “Lord, what are You teaching me in this season, and what must I continue doing?”

A delay may require patience, adjustment or both.

DANIEL'S THREE-WEEK BATTLE

Daniel 10:2–3 records that Daniel mourned for three full weeks. He humbled himself and sought God.

When the messenger eventually appeared, Daniel learned that a conflict had been involved. The messenger said that the prince of the kingdom of Persia resisted him for twenty-one days.

Daniel's experience demonstrates perseverance. He did not say, "God has not answered, so I will stop." He continued seeking God.

The passage also reminds us that spiritual realities are larger than human observation. Daniel could not see the conflict taking place, yet he remained faithful.

The purpose of this story is not to create a formula that every delayed prayer is caused by a territorial spirit. Scripture does not authorize us to make that assumption.

Instead, Daniel teaches us to remain humble, prayerful and persistent when answers are delayed.

Sometimes God changes the circumstance. Sometimes He changes us. Sometimes He gives understanding. Sometimes He gives strength to wait.

The faithful response is the same: keep seeking God.

PRAYER, FASTING AND PERSEVERANCE

Prayer is communion with God. Fasting is a biblical practice of humbling ourselves before God and seeking Him with focused devotion.

Daniel's experience included both prayerful seeking and a period of fasting. Jesus also taught His disciples about fasting, making it clear that fasting should be directed toward God rather than performed for public recognition.

Fasting is not a way to manipulate God. We do not fast to force heaven to obey us. We fast to draw near to God, discipline our desires and seek His will.

Perseverance means continuing in prayer without allowing delay to destroy faith.

Luke 18:1 teaches that people ought always to pray and not faint.

A balanced prayer life includes worship, thanksgiving, confession, petition, intercession, listening and Scripture meditation.

When fasting, wisdom and health considerations matter. The goal is devotion, not self-harm. Where appropriate, seek sound pastoral or medical guidance, especially for extended fasting or when taking medication.

Prayer changes situations, but prayer also changes the person praying.

THE AUTHORITY OF THE BELIEVER

Believers are not called to live as helpless victims of spiritual opposition.

Jesus taught His disciples about authority, but Christian authority must always remain under Christ's lordship. We do not exercise authority independently of Him.

Luke 10:19 speaks of authority over the power of the enemy, while the surrounding passage emphasizes that the disciples should ultimately rejoice that their names are written in heaven.

This is a crucial balance: spiritual authority is not a platform for pride.

Authority is expressed through obedience, prayer, faith, Scripture, holiness and confidence in Christ.

The believer can pray with confidence, reject temptation, refuse lies, forgive enemies, speak truth, resist fear and stand firm in faith.

Our authority is not proven by dramatic language. It is demonstrated by faithful obedience.

The strongest spiritual posture is often quiet confidence: "God is with me. I will obey Him. I will not surrender my faith to fear."

SUBMIT TO GOD, RESIST THE DEVIL

James 4:7 gives a two-part instruction: submit to God and resist the devil.

The order matters.

Submission means yielding our will to God. It includes repentance, obedience, humility and dependence.

Resistance means refusing to cooperate with temptation, deception and spiritual evil.

A believer cannot consistently resist darkness while deliberately resisting God's correction.

When temptation comes, submission says, "Lord, Your will is greater than my desire." Resistance says, "I will not agree with what is contrary to God's Word."

This principle applies to bitterness, sexual temptation, pride, greed, hatred, dishonesty, fear and every other area where believers can be drawn away from God.

Spiritual warfare is therefore deeply connected to character.

If you want strength in warfare, strengthen your walk with God. Spend time in Scripture. Pray. Worship. Practice forgiveness. Confess sin. Seek accountability. Stay connected to mature Christian fellowship.

Victory is not merely shouting against darkness; it is walking faithfully in the light.

THE ARMOUR OF GOD

Ephesians 6:13 says believers should take the whole armour of God so that they may withstand in the evil day.

Paul then describes the armour: the belt of truth, breastplate of righteousness, shoes connected with the Gospel of peace, shield of faith, helmet of salvation and sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God.

Notice that much of the armour is defensive. The emphasis is on standing.

Truth protects against deception. Righteousness protects the heart from compromise. The Gospel establishes peace. Faith extinguishes the fiery darts of doubt and accusation. Salvation guards the mind with the hope of what God has done in Christ. Scripture provides a weapon for responding to lies and temptation.

Then Ephesians 6:18 adds prayer.

The armour is not a magical phrase. It represents a life shaped by God's truth and sustained through prayer.

Put on the armour by living what it represents.

TRUTH AND RIGHTEOUSNESS

The first pieces of armour remind us that spiritual stability begins with truth and righteous living.

A believer who constantly embraces lies becomes spiritually vulnerable. Lies about God, identity, purpose, relationships and circumstances can shape destructive decisions.

Jesus said in John 8:32 that the truth makes people free. Scripture therefore becomes a standard by which thoughts and claims are tested.

Righteousness does not mean pretending to be perfect. It means living in alignment with God and relying upon His grace.

When you know you have sinned, confess it. When you have harmed someone, seek reconciliation where appropriate. When you have made a mistake, correct it.

Accusation says, "You have failed, therefore you are finished." Conviction says, "This is wrong; return to God."

The Gospel gives hope because Christ does not merely expose sin—He provides redemption.

Truth without love can become harsh. Love without truth can become compromise. Biblical maturity holds both together.

FAITH AGAINST FEAR

Resistance often produces fear. The mind begins asking: "What if it never changes? What if I fail? What if the promise does not happen?"

Faith does not deny reality. Faith refuses to allow reality to become greater than God.

2 Timothy 1:7 teaches that God has not given us the spirit of fear, but of power, love and a sound mind.

A sound mind is important in spiritual warfare. Fear can cause impulsive decisions, suspicion, anger and hopelessness.

Faith says: "I do not know everything, but I know God."

Abraham waited for a promise. Joseph endured betrayal and imprisonment before seeing God's purpose unfold. David spent years between anointing and kingship.

Their stories teach us that God's process can include long seasons of uncertainty.

Do not make permanent decisions because of temporary fear.

Pray before reacting. Seek wise counsel. Examine facts. Return to Scripture. Then move forward in obedience.

THE WORD AS A SWORD

Ephesians 6:17 identifies the sword of the Spirit as the Word of God.

Jesus demonstrated the power of Scripture during His temptation in Matthew 4. He answered the tempter with God's Word.

This teaches us that spiritual resistance requires biblical literacy. If you do not know Scripture, you may struggle to recognize falsehood.

However, Scripture should never be used as a collection of slogans detached from context. Study what the Bible actually teaches.

When fear says, "You are alone," remember the biblical truth of God's presence. When temptation says, "You must surrender," remember that obedience to God is possible. When condemnation says, "There is no hope," remember the Gospel of grace.

Memorize key passages. Study whole chapters. Understand context. Compare related Scriptures.

The Word is most powerful in a life that believes it, understands it and practices it.

PRAYER THAT REFUSES TO FAINT

Persistent prayer is not repetition without faith. It is continuing relationship with God while waiting for His answer.

Luke 18:1 introduces Jesus' teaching on persistence with the phrase that people should pray and not faint.

A prayer that refuses to faint does not demand a particular outcome at all costs. It remains surrendered to God's wisdom while continuing to seek Him.

Daniel prayed. Hannah prayed. Elijah prayed. The early church prayed. Jesus Himself prayed.

Build a prayer life that includes both private devotion and corporate prayer.

Keep a prayer journal. Record requests, Scriptures, insights and answers. This helps you remember God's faithfulness.

When you become discouraged, shorten the distance between you and God—do not withdraw from Him.

Sometimes the most powerful prayer is simple: "Lord, strengthen me to remain faithful today."

Persistence is not evidence that God is reluctant. It is often evidence that faith is learning endurance.

DISCERNMENT IN SPIRITUAL WARFARE

Discernment is the ability to distinguish what is true, wise, godly and appropriate from what is false, harmful or misleading.

1 John 4:1 teaches believers to test the spirits rather than believe every spiritual claim.

Discernment requires Scripture, prayer, humility and wise counsel.

Do not accept a prophecy merely because it sounds spiritual. Do not reject something merely because it challenges you. Test it.

Ask: Does this agree with Scripture? Does it produce godly fruit? Is the messenger accountable? Does it exalt Christ or the person delivering the message? Is there manipulation, fear or financial pressure?

Discernment also applies to your own thoughts. Not every thought is a divine message. Not every coincidence is a sign. Not every dream requires a prophetic interpretation.

A mature believer can say, "I am not sure yet."

Uncertainty handled honestly is safer than false certainty.

The purpose of discernment is not suspicion; it is faithful obedience.

HUMAN OPPOSITION

Some resistance comes through people. Scripture contains many examples of conflict, jealousy, betrayal and misunderstanding.

Joseph faced opposition from his brothers. David faced hostility from Saul. Paul faced opposition from religious and political authorities.

Yet biblical faith does not authorize hatred of people. Ephesians 6:12 reminds us that people are not the ultimate enemy.

When dealing with human opposition, maintain integrity. Speak truth without unnecessary aggression. Set wise boundaries. Forgive where Scripture calls you to forgive. Seek reconciliation where possible.

Forgiveness does not always mean restoring trust without evidence of change. Wisdom and boundaries can coexist with forgiveness.

Do not allow another person's hostility to corrupt your character.

If someone opposes you, ask God to help you respond without becoming what you are resisting.

Your greatest victory may be maintaining Christlike character while navigating a difficult relationship.

SELF-INFLICTED RESISTANCE

Not all resistance is external. Sometimes our greatest obstacle is a repeated pattern within us.

Proverbs repeatedly connects wisdom with listening to correction. Disobedience can create consequences. Laziness can delay progress. Pride can destroy relationships. Poor stewardship can create financial pressure. Unforgiveness can poison the heart.

Ask God to search your heart. Psalm 139:23–24 provides a model prayer for examination.

Repentance is not humiliation; it is a pathway back to alignment.

If God reveals something, respond.

Do not spend ten hours praying against an obstacle that obedience can remove in ten minutes.

If you need to study, study. If you need to reconcile, reconcile. If you need to organize, organize. If you need to stop a destructive relationship or habit, seek wise help and take appropriate steps.

Spiritual maturity recognizes the difference between spiritual warfare and personal responsibility.

Sometimes the breakthrough begins with repentance.

ENDURANCE AND DIVINE TIMING

God's timing can be difficult to understand.

Ecclesiastes 3 teaches that there is a season for different purposes under heaven. Scripture also shows that waiting can be part of God's process.

Joseph's journey from dream to leadership included betrayal, slavery and imprisonment. David's anointing preceded his public kingship. Moses spent years in the wilderness before returning to Egypt.

These stories do not mean every delay guarantees a dramatic promotion. They teach a broader principle: God's work in us may involve process.

Do not despise preparation.

A delayed opportunity may be developing your character, skill, wisdom or relationships. Sometimes the closed door protects you from something you cannot yet see.

Pray for both open doors and closed doors that serve God's purpose.

Endurance asks, "How can I remain faithful in this season?" rather than only asking, "When will my season change?"

WHEN DOORS SEEM CLOSED

A closed door can feel like rejection. Yet not every closed door is an enemy.

Paul experienced closed opportunities in Acts 16 before receiving direction toward Macedonia. Sometimes God redirects rather than simply delays.

This is why discernment is essential.

If a door closes, do not immediately declare, "The devil has done this." Pray. Evaluate. Ask for wisdom. Consider whether circumstances are redirecting you.

Proverbs 3:5–6 encourages trust in the Lord rather than leaning entirely on personal understanding.

A closed door can protect. It can redirect. It can expose poor preparation. It can be temporary. It can be permanent. Only God knows the whole picture.

Your responsibility is faithfulness.

If God opens the door, walk through it with humility. If He closes it, trust Him enough to continue following Him.

RESPONDING TO DELAYED ANSWERS

When an answer is delayed, protect your heart from four dangers: bitterness, panic, compromise and comparison.

Bitterness says, "God has forgotten me." Panic says, "I must make something happen." Compromise says, "I will abandon my convictions to get what I want." Comparison says, "Everyone else is progressing except me."

Replace these reactions with four practices: thanksgiving, prayer, obedience and wise action.

Thank God for what is already present. Pray honestly about what is missing. Continue obeying what Scripture clearly requires. Take practical steps where appropriate.

Do not compare your process with another person's public outcome. You do not know their full story.

Remember Daniel: heaven had heard him before he saw the answer.

Your waiting season is not empty if you are growing in God.

Ask not only for the answer. Ask for the wisdom to handle the answer when it comes.

A BIBLICAL PATTERN FOR WARFARE

When you sense resistance, use this simple biblical pattern.

1. STOP — Do not react from fear.
2. PRAY — Bring the situation honestly before God.
3. SEARCH — Examine Scripture and your own actions.
4. DISCERN — Identify what is spiritual, relational, practical or self-created.
5. REPENT — Where you are wrong, turn back to God.
6. RESIST — Reject temptation, lies and ungodly pressure.
7. ACT — Take the practical step God requires.
8. WAIT — Do not force what God has not opened.
9. SEEK COUNSEL — Invite mature, trustworthy believers to help.
10. PERSEVERE — Continue faithfully without fainting.

This pattern prevents two extremes: passivity and spiritualized panic.

You do not need to understand every invisible detail before you obey the next clear instruction from God.

Faith often looks like taking the next right step.

INTERCESSION FOR OTHERS

Spiritual warfare is not only personal. Believers are called to pray for others.

Paul repeatedly asked churches to pray for him. Jesus taught His disciples to pray for one another and for those who would believe through their message.

Intercession means standing before God on behalf of people, communities and situations.

Pray for families, pastors, leaders, churches, young people, the vulnerable, those facing temptation and those who do not yet know Christ.

Avoid turning intercession into accusation. We are called to pray for people, not publicly destroy their reputation through spiritual language.

Intercession should be filled with love.

Ask God to give wisdom, protection, repentance, healing, justice, reconciliation and salvation according to His will.

A praying church becomes a strengthening community.

When resistance affects someone you love, do not only discuss their problem. Pray for them. Encourage them. Where appropriate, help practically.

Prayer and love belong together.

PROTECTING YOUR PURPOSE

Purpose must be stewarded.

You cannot control every opposition, but you can protect your focus, character and obedience.

Guard your relationships. Guard your time. Guard what you repeatedly allow into your mind. Guard your integrity. Guard your prayer life.

Nehemiah is an excellent example. When rebuilding Jerusalem's wall, he faced opposition and distractions. He refused to abandon the assignment for unnecessary meetings designed to pull him away.

Purpose requires boundaries.

Not every invitation deserves your attention. Not every criticism deserves a response. Not every opportunity is your assignment.

Ask God for the wisdom to recognize distractions disguised as opportunities.

Protecting purpose does not mean becoming inaccessible or arrogant. It means becoming intentional.

Stay teachable, but remain focused.

FROM RESISTANCE TO TESTIMONY

A difficult season can become part of a testimony, but testimony should never glorify suffering itself. The glory belongs to God.

Romans 5:3–5 connects tribulation with perseverance, character and hope.

God can use what was meant to discourage you to deepen your faith.

Daniel's story did not end with the twenty-one-day resistance. He received understanding and continued serving God.

Joseph's story did not end in prison. David's story did not end in the wilderness.

Your present chapter is not necessarily your final chapter.

Record what God teaches you. When the season changes, remember what you learned.

Do not waste resistance. Let it produce wisdom.

Do not let opposition make you cruel. Let it make you compassionate.

Do not let delay make you faithless. Let it make you rooted.

The greatest testimony is not merely, "I got what I prayed for." It is, "I remained faithful to God through the process."

DECLARATIONS & PRAYER POINTS

Biblical declarations should agree with Scripture and should not be used as magical formulas.

PRAYER POINTS

1. Lord, strengthen me to remain faithful when answers are delayed.
2. Give me wisdom to distinguish spiritual opposition from practical problems.
3. Search my heart and reveal any area requiring repentance.
4. Help me resist temptation and stand firm in truth.
5. Strengthen my prayer life and deliver me from discouragement.
6. Help me forgive people who have opposed or wounded me.
7. Give me courage to take every practical step required of me.
8. Protect me from deception, pride and spiritual manipulation.
9. Help me recognize distractions and remain focused on my assignment.
10. Teach me to wait for Your timing without becoming passive.
11. Strengthen my family and those entrusted to my care.
12. Let my life produce fruit that honours Jesus Christ.

CONFESSION OF FAITH

I will seek God before I react. I will stand on His Word. I will remain teachable. I will take responsibility for my choices. I will resist evil and pursue righteousness. I will not allow temporary resistance to destroy my faith. My confidence is in Jesus Christ.

DAY 6 — PURPOSE

Read Nehemiah 6. Ask God to help you recognize distractions and remain focused.

DAY 7 — THANKSGIVING

Read Psalm 103. Thank God for His faithfulness, including the things you cannot yet see.

At the end of seven days, write down what you learned, what you need to change and what you are trusting God to do. Then continue faithfully.

FINAL EXHORTATION

Beloved believer, resistance is real, but resistance is not sovereign.

There may be seasons when your prayers seem delayed, doors seem closed and opposition appears stronger than your strength. Remember Daniel. His words had been heard from the beginning.

Remember James: submit to God and resist the devil.

Remember Paul: Satan may hinder a journey, but God remains Lord.

Remember Galatians: do not become weary in doing good.

Remember Ephesians: take the whole armour of God and stand.

Your assignment is not to understand every battle in the invisible realm. Your assignment is to remain faithful to God.

Pray without giving up. Study the Word. Practice discernment. Repent quickly. Forgive wisely. Take responsibility. Seek counsel. Maintain integrity. Refuse fear.

Above everything, keep your eyes on Jesus Christ.

The believer's greatest victory is not the absence of opposition. It is the presence of faithfulness in the middle of opposition.

Stand.

Pray.

Believe.

Obey.

Persevere.

And let God have the final word.

BATTLE AGAINST RESISTING AND OPPOSING FORCES

OVERCOMING EVERY FORCE THAT RESISTS GOD'S PURPOSE

“Submit yourselves therefore to God. Resist the devil, and he will flee from you.”— James 4:7 KJV

What do you do when you have prayed, obeyed and believed—but resistance remains?

This book explores Daniel 10 and the biblical principles of spiritual opposition, perseverance, discernment, prayer, fasting, spiritual authority, the armour of God and personal responsibility.

It is a call to believers not to panic, not to blame every problem on demons, and not to abandon their faith because manifestation has been delayed.

Stand firm. Seek God. Test everything by Scripture. Take responsibility where necessary. Persevere in obedience.
